on the way to
inclusive society

Globalization has led the international community to the need for coexistence and common inability to continued existence in governmental or cultural isolation

Integration into European civilization space for ordinary citizens Ukraine involves changing established philosophical ideas. Philosophical and socio-psychological revision need of values, ideological conviction, legal and moral norms that govern relations in decades. The central and main ideological trend of western culture is the recognition of the equality of every member of the community in their rights, opportunities, responsibilities in an environment that accepts everyone and open to dialogue and even different people

In model-based socio-psychological perception of an average individual is the phenomenology of social differentiation "I-we-they" offered by B.F. Porshnev. During the public istoriohenezu the gradual transition from a cluster of social relations to inclusive (V.V.Kyrychenko).

"I" reflects feeling of personal identity and causality,
"we" – represents the integration of the individual in a collective environment and "They" refers to a group of people, which is the opposite of "We" (differ by one of the signs).
Within dichotomous scale of "we-they" is the formation of personality, which is also seeking to integrate into a specific environment,
be part of a group and keep its own unique

Public relations: differences of interpersonal interaction

Matrix society – clearly differentiated community where each member performs a specific activity according to the collective distribution of social roles
(I'm the one who I want to see others)

Inclusive society – is open socio-cultural and economic space where interaction between entities is based on equality of all members in rights and duties (I'm the one who I can be)

The ideas of inclusive education, professionalization and quality integration of persons with disabilities in the social environment in the current social and cultural conditions of the discord prevailing stereotypes regarding the elderly. During the years of Soviet history role-relationship to "cripples" as disabled people has created a system of specialized educational institutions, which in turn formed the specific public attitudes towards people with disabilities. In this we see the difficulties of implementing inclusive education programs, which to date have declarative.

The solution we see in a role changing attitudes towards persons with disabilities to seek a role-realization of people with disabilities in various social spheres.

Mistakenly inclusive society consider environment only effective adaptation of persons with disabilities. This is a society that is comfortable and safe for all members, regardless of gender, ethnicity, religious orientation, sexual orientation. The principles on which it operates enables each member of the community be included in the system of social relations, performing socially necessary activities and implement their own needs.

We are open to those who are ready to work for the public good

inclusive society

The idea of our project – to create a favorable social environment for the full integration of any member of society, which is set up to work for the public good. An inclusive environment is not based locally (in specific schools, organizations) and must be set at national level.

It is necessary to stimulate reflexive potential individual and personal look for opportunities rather than limitations. Violation of mental and physical development is not an obstacle to a full professional activity.

The main objective of the project is to develop modern public attitudes and outlook on the possibility of inclusion of people with special needs in common social activities.
